

FREE TRADE ZONE / EXPORT PROCESSING ZONE

Boosting logistics operations and reducing costs by using a centralized regional tariff-free cross-dock hub

Consumer electronics companies transport manufactured goods from country of origin into a free trade zone (FTZ) or export processing zone (EPZ) to prepare country-specific finished products for onward shipment. This offers many operational and financial benefits.

TYPICAL BUSINESS CHALLENGES

- Optimizing the supply chain network
- Achieving finished goods flexibility
- Deferring customs duties and taxes
- Accurately harmonizing HTS/HS codes
- Accelerating speed to market

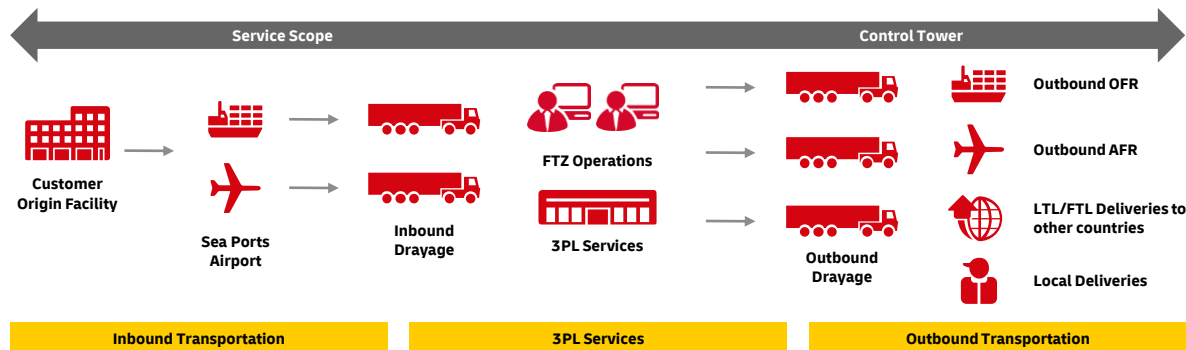

DHL SOLUTION

By leveraging FTZ/EPZ facilities, companies can take advantage of a centralized regional tariff-free cross-dock hub. Goods are received for inventory checking, secure storage, postponement activities, and component assembly followed by country-specific customs clearance and dispatch/delivery.

SOLVING YOUR BUSINESS CHALLENGES

- ✓ Optimizing the supply chain network – Replace or minimize the use of traditional in-country distribution centers; network optimization from country of origin through to final delivery destination; manage multiple stakeholders; holistic, strategic control; end-to-end visibility
- ✓ Achieving finished goods flexibility – Enables inventory risk pooling; value-added services include postponement activities, packing, kitting, and assembly; fulfill country-specific orders/product configurations
- ✓ Deferring customs duties and taxes – Incurs only one export process, when goods leave the FTZ/EPZ; no fees are due between country of origin and regional hub
- ✓ Accurately harmonizing HTS/HS codes – Light assembly work is performed using multiple items, each with its own Harmonized Tariff Schedule (HTS) or Harmonized System (HS) code; once completed, finished goods each receive a single HTS/HS code
- ✓ Accelerating speed to market – Efficient warehouse management system; rapid order fulfillment and customs clearance; optimized onward multimodal goods transportation
