On this page, DHL Express (“DHLE”) provides information for California residents, as required under the California Consumer Privacy Act (“CCPA”). The CCPA requires that DHLE disclose how it handles California residents’ personal information (as that term is defined under the CCPA), whether collected online or offline. Under the CCPA, “personal information” is any information that identifies, relates to, describes, is reasonably capable of being associated with, or could reasonably be linked, directly or indirectly, with a particular California resident or household. It does not include publicly available information, which is any information lawfully made available by a state, local, or federal government source.

DHLE is a global express delivery courier that specializes in the delivery of time definite shipments internationally. DHLE primarily serves business clients and consumers. - Customer Records: DHLE may collect paper and electronic customer records containing personal information including names, signatures, addresses, telephone numbers, current employment, or certain financial or payment information.
- Usage Data: DHLE may collect internet or other electronic network activity information including, but not limited to, browsing history, clickstream data, search history, and information regarding a resident’s interaction with an internet website, application, or advertisement, including access logs and other activity information related to your use of any DHLE website, application, or other online service.
- Audio, Video, and other Electronic Data: DHLE may collect audio, electronic, or visual information including CCTV footage, photographs, and call recordings and other audio recordings at its facilities.

DHLE may also collect this information to provide quotes for its customers, and to respond to inquiries or requests from customers or ultimate consignees of merchandise.

California Residents' Rights

As a California resident, California law grants you certain rights and imposes restrictions on particular business practices as described below.

Sale of Personal Information. DHLE does not sell personal information.

Verifiable Requests to Delete and Requests to Know. Subject to exceptions, including DHLE's obligations under U.S. laws, some California residents may have the right to make the following requests at no charge to them:

Request to Delete: California residents have the right to request deletion of their personal information that DHLE collected about them and to have such personal information deleted to the extent allowed under law. Please note that DHLE is required to keep certain data pursuant to law, including maintaining data on all shipments that are imported or exported into or from the United States for a defined period of time.

Request to Know: California residents have the right to request, and subject to certain exemptions, receive a copy of the specific pieces and categories of personal information, as defined by CCPA, that DHLE has collected about them in the prior 12 months and to have this delivered, free of charge, either (a) by mail or (b) electronically in a portable and, to the extent technically feasible, readily useable format that allows the individual to transmit this information to another entity without hindrance. California residents also have the right to request that we provide them certain information about how we have handled their personal information in the prior 12 months, including the:

- categories of personal information collected;
- categories of sources of personal information;
- business and/or commercial purposes for collecting and selling their personal information;
- categories of third parties/with whom we have disclosed or shared their personal information;
- categories of personal information that we have disclosed or shared with a third party for a business purpose;
- specific pieces of personal information collected; and
- categories of third parties to whom the residents' personal information has been sold and the specific categories of personal information sold to each category of third party.

California residents may make Requests to Know up to twice every 12 months.

Submitting Requests. Requests to Opt-out of Sale of Personal Information, Requests to Know, and Requests to Delete may be submitted by emailing your verifiable requests to Express.CCPA@dhl.com. You may also submit your requests over the phone by calling 1-888-798-4200. To submit a request, you will need to provide DHLE with your name, your address, and any information requested regarding the transportation or logistics services that DHLE provided to you so that DHLE can verify your request. DHLE may need to contact you for additional information to verify your identity. DHLE will respond to verifiable requests received from California consumers as required by law. DHLE will honor deletion requests to the extent allowed by law as DHLE may have various legal obligations requiring it to maintain data for a set time period.

Right to Non-Discrimination. The CCPA prohibits discrimination against California residents for exercising their rights under the CCPA. Discrimination may exist where a business denies or provides a different level or quality of goods or services, or charges (or suggests that it will charge) different prices, rates, or penalties on residents who exercise their CCPA rights, unless doing so is reasonably related to the value provided to the business by the residents' data.
